Maine Fisheries.

Alonzo R. Nickerson of Boothbay Harbor, Maine, commissioner of sea and shore fisheries, has submitted his biennial report to the governor and council, showing the fisheries of the state to be in a generally prosperous condition. The figures given by the commissioner show that there are more men engaged in the business, more money invested, more value of product and larger money returns to the individual fishermen than ever before.

There were 375 vessels, aggregating 5980 tons, engaged in the fishing industry in 1890. In 1900 there were 422 vessels of 8213 tons. For the year just closed the total yield of all the fisheries in the state is 152,007,921 pounds and the value of this production is $2,784,435. The lobster factory is credited with the largest value of any fishery in the state, the value being $1,037,586.

Herring Are Scarce.

A telegram from Bonne Bay, N. F., states that there are no herring there.

No herring are reported at Fortune or Placentia Bays or Bay of Islands.

There is a report that herring are plentiful on the east coast at Conception Bonavista and Notre Dame bays.
